"The dialogue is witty. The plot is well-constructed and believable. The action is constant with enough tension to keep the reader's interest throughout....Truly a delight to read."

"Will these two lonely, lovable people outwit their pursuers long enough to find each other? Will Jamie get to listen to his beloved mum read him the next Harry Potter adventure, or will his dreaded father have his chance to turn the sweet little guy into an international thug, as is his (the dad's) plan?"

"You know what we're hoping, of course. But you won't know exactly what happens and how it all goes down unless you enjoy this delightful and suspenseful romance-mystery. Suggestion: enjoy!"

"Marie-Nicole Ryan's first book is a winner in LOVE ON THE RUN. Chemistry sparks between Miranda Raines[...]and Scotland Yard's Deputy Chief Inspector as they flee England to hop around the continent and hide in the anonymity of the French countryside. [...]if you like a good read that will make you laugh and make you cry then LOVE ON THE RUN is for you."

THE MAN FOR THE JOB, released Octobert 2004:

With most of the story taking place within a weekend house party, THE MAN FOR THE JOB is reminiscent of Agatha Christie's Hercule Poirot stories. A Poirot with lots of humor. Ms. Ryan seems to have had as much fun writing this story as a reader will have devouring it.

THE MAN FOR THE JOB is a real charmer. A romantic suspense to be relished for the top-notch entertainment it is.

This is a full-length romantic suspense novel, with the emphasis on suspense! The plot is very twisty, but the writing is so well done that the reader has no difficulty following it. Satisfyingly, all loose ends are neatly tied up at the end. The romance is excellent, with very sensual love scenes. The author seeks to emulate the writing style of Dashiell Hammett, although it is done with a lighter touch and a lot more humor. What engaged me the most was the fast and witty style that kept the pace up and kept me interested in the book. I'd say this is a great light mystery for someone who likes a dash of romance with their suspense! Reviewed by: Jean, Fallen Angel Reviews, Four Angels!

"The Man for the Job is a combination of Spillane and Poirot. This fast paced mystery is hard hitting and gritty, yet instilled with a deep romance that cannot be denied. The characters are real and the reader cares about them instantly. This story is not one that can be read in segments; once you turn the first page, you must keep turning until you reach the end. And the last page leaves me wanting to read more of Marie-Nicole Ryan's work. Bravo!"

"It's a testament to a skilled writer when a somewhat jaded reader has trouble putting a book away for the night.[...] Ryan has a deft touch with her dialogue, creates unusual and sympathetic characters and paints scenes that take the reader seamlessly between the harshness of the mean streets, the glittering world of an elite modeling agency, and the couple's dreamy past lives. This novel should please every hopeless romantic."

BIOGRAPHY

Romantic suspense author, Marie-Nicole Ryan, has had a life-long love affair with books. Like a lot of people, she thought she'd write a book some day. Since time passed so quickly (when you're supposed to be having fun), she found herself well into middle age and still no book--as long as you don't count the hundred pages of one she typed on an old portable Smith-Corona typewriter back in the late Seventies.

Love on the Run was her first book published (2002), and it was the realization of a long-held dream. Although she spent most of her life working as an RN, she also found time to earn an associate degree in interior design, something that comes in handy when it's time to visualize a room. And since she can't resist placing her characters in jeopardy, her medical experience isn't wasted either.

Since that first book, she's published three more books. Too Good To Be True is her latest release at Samhain Publishing, Ltd., and she has three more contracted for release this fall and in 2008.

She's a member of ROMANCE WRITERS OF AMERICA and MUSIC CITY ROMANCE WRITERS, EPIC, and Kiss of Death. When she was the editor of MCRW's newsletter, Love Notes, she won first place in the RWA small chapter newsletter contest.

She's a native of Henderson, Kentucky, but she's lived in Tennessee so long she considers herself a native. She's given up her day job and is continually amazed by how much more writing she's accomplished.
